

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

THE hand that rocks the cradle gets the spotlight these days. Our movie stars have lost nothing—they've even gained much—by becoming mothers. They were out in the vanguard of the vogue—Betty Grable, Alice Faye, Gene Tierney, and Lana Turner—all glittering names in movieland. And with sincerest flattery the minor glamorettes whipped into line.

Gone but Not Forgotten

A star who has a baby is gone from audiences a year or more.

That is, only so far as actually seeing her movies is concerned. She can open the newspapers or magazines any old time and read as much about herself, now that baby-having is the rage, as if she were standing before the cameras on an eight hour day.

Box Office Betty Grable's latest picture, "Pin Up Girl," was finished in September of last year. But Betty stayed in the hearts of fans who followed her progress avidly in every detail.

The Trail Blazer

Let's go back a few years. It was Norma Shearer who really put babies on the cinematic lap. She was called the first lady of Hollywood then, and, as you know, the first lady can do no wrong. She was also the wife of Irving Thalberg, our top producer.

Twentieth Century-Fox recently put out word that Betty Grable's next picture will be "Diamond Horseshoe," a gilded musical based on Billy Rose's night club. Her costumes will outdo anything Betty has ever had.

Wanted—The Details

But your fan comes back with "Is it true Betty wore butcher boy smocks when she was carrying Vicki?" or "How about that formula Victoria Elizabeth James thrives on?"

If you meet Betty she'll talk only about the baby and Harry.

"Wait until you get into harness again," I said. "The music will get into your feet. The costumes will bring that certain heady feeling—why, even the smell of the makeup will become incense in your nostrils."

"Sure," said the glamour madonna. She was yesing me, but her mind was not there.

Only the Beginning

And I keep remembering her remark to Harry James when she found she had a girl baby: "I'll have a boy for you, Harry—honest I will." Just thinking of the loss in millions that those babies will mean is what turns movie moguls' hair gray.

George Jessel is doing a bit of worrying, too. He's wondering about "The Dolly Sisters." He wants Alice Faye and Betty Grable together in that one, just as they were in "Tin Pan Alley."

Alice finished "The Gang's All Here" on July 3, 1943. One year as the calendar goes could be dangerous to a star. But Alice's mail builds, although she's made but two pictures in the last three years. Her fans write about how much more beautiful she is now than before Alice Jr. was born. Even so, it's time for Mrs. Phil Harris to be thinking of her next starring vehicle. She can make one before "The Dolly Sisters" goes on the schedule.

Time Out

What of Gene Tierney and Lana Turner? They proved quick-change artists from baby tending to picture routine. Lana was gone from Metro 14 months. Came back to "Marriage Is a Private Affair" when Cheryl Christina was six months old. Steps into "Women in Uniform" in two weeks' time.

"Heaven Can Wait" was closed out April 10, 1943. And "Laura" began April 27, 1944. In between those dates Gene Tierney lived a down-to-earth interval at Junction City which included keeping house in an army settlement for husband Lieut. Oleg Cassini. She gave birth to Daria on October 14 last in a Washington hospital. If any of you girls think you're bright and capable, top that one. Gene plays the title role in "Laura" at the moment; wears the most bizarre modern costumes.

Roasted Wrong Turkey

Jerry Lester tells about the end of his father's newspaper career. His father wrote about a new play, saying "This was a turkey peddled two months before Thanksgiving." He didn't know his publisher had helped finance the play. . . . Dame May Whitty finally gets a good part in "Thrill of a Romance" with Esther Williams and Van Johnson. And they'll all have a thrill when Lauritz Melchior starts singing. He's in the same opus.

DREW CANNING CO. FURNISHES BUS SERVICE

The Drew Canning Company has rented two of the Campbell grammar school buses and is using them to transport workers to and from their plant. One bus, driven by Tony Pimentel goes out Winchester highway thru Los Gatos and back by San Jose and North Union avenues.

Workers for the Victory shift can board the bus at 5:30 p. m. and return at 10 o'clock.

A second bus which Leslie Davidson drives picks up workers in the Burbank district.

Schools were given special permits to utilize their buses to aid in the harvesting and preserving of the food crops this season.

James W. Dent Co-Representative AT Berkeley Meet

James W. Dent, the new principal of the Campbell high school was one of three Santa Clara county representatives at the Teachers Institute on driver training, held at Berkeley U C July 17 to 21.

The Institute was arranged to provide instructors in driver education for new automobile driving instruction classes in California high schools, beginning with the coming fall school term. The statewide movement for such courses has received added impetus from the Army request that Pre-Induction Driver Training courses be given for high school students.

In addition to class lectures on all phases of motor vehicle operations, the course included driving tests, motion pictures, studies of cutaway chassis and operation of latest driver testing devices. This new idea of driver training for students, already adopted by a few California hi schools is expected to become general throughout the state. Objectives of such training are not only to meet military demands for trained motor vehicle operators and to fill the need for civilian drivers in essential homefront industries; but for the long-range purpose of teaching safe driving to the motor vehicle operators of tomorrow.

BREAD AND SECURITY

FOR CENTURIES BEFORE 1831—WHEN AMERICA PRODUCED THE REAPER—IT TOOK A MAN NEARLY 40 HOURS TO HARVEST AND THRESH ONE ACRE OF WHEAT. BEFORE THE "MACHINE AGE" INDIVIDUAL PRODUCTION WAS LARGELY LIMITED BY PHYSICAL STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE... THE STANDARD OF LIVING WAS LOW.

A 12-FOOT MODERN COMBINE CAN HARVEST AND THRESH AN ACRE OF WHEAT IN 1/2 HOUR. WITH THE AID OF TODAY'S MACHINES WHICH HAVE VASTLY INCREASED PRODUCTION, WE ARE ABLE TO PROVIDE NOT ONLY A HIGHER STANDARD OF LIVING BUT OUR FUTURE SECURITY—THROUGH WAR BONDS, LIFE INSURANCE, SAVINGS ACCOUNTS.

Goodyear Shows Film At Kiwanis Meet Tuesday

Very interesting sound pictures presenting the process of making synthetic rubber were shown at Kiwanis meeting Tuesday.

The movie is sponsored by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and was displayed by Pat Dunne.

The film shows that constant improvement is being made in the process so that the synthetic product stands up very well, and in some respects surpasses the natural rubber tire.

Dunne stated that there is little prospect as yet for synthetic rubber for the non-essential uses of civilians. The military services have the priority of productions for airplane and truck tires and other uses.

For the present year the quota for passenger cars is about one half of the normal prewar requirements.

Visitors were T. A. Cutting, Joseph McKinnon and Frank Ferro, SpF3/c. Frank explained a little of the fire fighting training he is undergoing in the navy, where several improvements have been made in this procedure, and a constant stream of new recruits in this line is going through the schools.

Fred Jones was chairman of the day.

Next week Ray Bishop will preside and Jack Farnham will be presented as winner of the Campbell high school Future Farmer program for the past school year.

Former Local Woman Writes Two Radio Plays

Jean Holloway Benson, niece of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Lamb, and known to many here is now author of the script for the program, "Dangerously Yours" heard Sunday mornings at 11 o'clock, and "Romance" on Tuesday evenings, both on the Columbia network. This summer she is teaching New York's Columbia university's advanced class in radio script writing and giving a lecture each week.

Baldwins Will Visit Montana

Rev. and Mrs. D. H. Baldwin and sons, Frank and Donald, left Sunday evening from San Jose for a month in Montana where the family will help Mr. Baldwin's father in the production of the honey vests and prepares.

They will go to Tacoma, Wash., where they will visit relatives for a few days, make a stop in western Montana at Somers, on Flathead Lake, a former pastorate, before arriving August 1 at Fort Shaw, Montana, the Baldwin family home. The Baldwins will return to Campbell during the first week of September.

IRV TOWNSEND TRANSFERRED TO NEW MEXICO

The many friends of Irving Townsend and his parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Townsend of North Union avenue, will be interested in this item which appeared in the Sentinel-Record, Hot Springs National park, Arkansas on Wednesday, July 19:

NATIONAL PARK'S CHIEF RANGER IS TRANSFERRED

Hot Springs National Park's chief ranger, Irving D. Townsend, today received notice of his promotion and transfer to Aztec National Monument in New Mexico, where he will be custodian. The time of his departure has not been set.

Mr. Townsend has been with the National Park Service for more than 11 years, seven of which have been spent in Hot Springs National park. He was stationed here first in 1936-37 and was returned in 1939 to begin his present assignment. He served the two intervening years at Boulder Dam National Recreational area, Nevada.

Mr. Townsend, a native of California, was graduated from the University of Southern California and did post-graduate work at Harvard. He began his career with the National Park service at Yosemite National park, training under Forrest S. Townsley, one of the oldest and best-known rangers in the service. He was also stationed there during the time John W. Emmert, present Hot Springs National park superintendent, was serving as assistant superintendent in Yellowstone for temporary ranger duty. During the winter of 1932 he was connected with the California Department of Agriculture, division of chemistry, as inspector.

The Aztec National Monument to which Mr. Townsend is being transferred is one of the southwest's national monument groups set aside for the preservation of the most outstanding prehistoric and historic ruins of Aztec culture.

Former Local Boy Goes to Flying Instructors' School

Public Relations office at Randolph Field, Texas has released the following information regarding a Campbell flyer:

Selected for his flying skill and ability to teach, Second Lieutenant Jerry F. L. Aldrich, formerly of Campbell, has arrived at Randolph Field for a four weeks course in the Central Instructors school, center of higher education for pilots of the AAF Training Command.

After graduation CIS-trained pilots pass on flying techniques to aviation cadets and student officers at training stations throughout the country.

Firemen Busy Wednesday

The Campbell Volunteer Fire company responded to an alarm Wednesday afternoon, although it was outside of the district, in El Patio. The garage of Z. Hodges was completely destroyed but no damage was done to the house. It is remarkable how quickly the trucks were manned and gotten out when the firemen are busily employed in all quarters of town and must leave their work and run to the firehouse.

Blood donors from Campbell this week were Jack Murdock, Mrs. Arula McQueen, D. H. McQueen, Mrs. Edna Rose, Mrs. Lynn Thompson, Mrs. Grace Page, Mrs. M. C. Thiehoff, Miss Floria Teresi, Mrs. Ruby Reason and H. E. Paul.

INTERNAL CRISIS

Tacher-training enrollments have dropped off 63 crisis, or even wide-spread revolt, against Hitler's Nazi regime was obvious by Hitler's unprecedented broadcast last week following the attempted assassination. The preventive measures he outlined indicated that his henchmen had at best temporarily quelled, not killed, the revolt. In his six-minute address, Hitler announced the appointment of the dreaded Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler as commander-in-chief to exterminate the "usurpers."

NEW INVASION

The Normandy Coast is to be "invaded" by British and American entertainers, who will visit the troops in all sectors. They will use portable stages that can be erected in 45 minutes, complete with lighting equipment and scenery. Bands and symphony orchestras are included in the entertainment to be provided, and in addition to stars from the British and American stage and screen, local artists in each liberated country are to be enlisted through liaison officers appointed by Allied Governments.

WAR MYSTERY

The reason why no attempt was made to damage Allied shipping concentrations before the sailing of the invasion convoys from England is one of the mysteries of the war. In 1940, the Germans had heavy concentrations of troops and barges assembled on the Channel coast ready to invade Britain. The barges were attacked for weeks on end by the RAF, who had a total of not more than 190 bombers available for the task, and it is believed that no ships emerged from the ports to carry out an invasion attempt.

MINESWEEPERS FIRST AND LAST

The first ships to come within the range of the German guns off the shores of France on D-day were the "charwomen of the sea"—the little minesweepers many of which were converted fishing trawlers. There were 200 of them carrying 10,000 officers and men and over 2800 tons of minesweeping gear and 70 miles of sweep wire. Not only were the minesweepers the first to go in, but they are likely to be among the last to get out of the war. After the last war it took about a year to clean up the mines. It will take longer this time. Many mines have been laid by air and their positions are not known, so that there are enormous areas which must be swept before the sea is safe.

TRIAL BY FIRE

In the ghastly earth shattering blast that obliterated the Por of Chicago naval ammunition depot on the night of July 17, taking hundreds of lives and ripping the little community apart, a home battlefield was reared to test the skill and readiness of Civilian Defense throughout a huge operational area of the State.

The tremendous scope of the tragedy called into service every type of aid that Civilian Defense volunteers are trained and organized to provide.

Swiftly mobilized and working side by side with Red Cross disaster units, the civilians manned ambulances, aided in removal of the injured, set up canteens, supplied blankets, food, clothing and emergency accommodations for the homeless. Blood plasma was brought to the stricken area; portable electric plants were rigged to provide light for the rescue work, for all such facilities were smashed in the blast district. Doctors, nurses and medical supplies were rushed to Port Chicago; debris and wreckage were moved by volunteers.

Under conditions of cold and darkness, the complicated job of bringing workable order to the tragic scene was accomplished by the coordinated effort of the military, the Red Cross, local volunteers and organized Civilian Defense.

In this greatest home disaster of the war, Civilian Defense, which some among us felt had outlived its probable usefulness months ago—has met its trial by fire, and in its conduct has proved not only its need in wartime, but its own ability to fulfill that need.

TIDAL WAVE TECHNIQUE

Englands Royal Air Force is now using the 12,000 pound blockbuster to create artificial tidal waves that destroy Nazi shipping. These mighty bombs, capable of making craters on land 110 feet across, have a devastating effect when dropped in dock and tidal basins. During a recent raid on the Nazi E-boat base in Boulogne, the tidal wave technique was used with such good effect that the entire fleet of nine E-boats vanished.

SCHOOL CRISIS BECOMES REAL

Local educators years ago began warning against an impending drift away from the field of education because of better rewards offered young people in industry and trade. Today we see realistic confirmation of those predictions, as evidenced by the following newspaper item:

"OROVILLE, July 16.—(AP)—Eight rural Butte County schools cannot open this fall because of teacher shortage, County Superintendent of Schools Jay Partridge said today."

Only a few lines in a press dispatch—but they carry news freighted with ominous significance for California. The manpower lack which is closing school doors and forcing even the wealthiest districts to employ sub-standard teachers, started two years before the war, advises the State Council of Education. Its causes are plain, since our hindsight now is a little better than our foresight when the problem was in the making.

The present State allotment to elementary schools, totaling $60 per pupil per year, and used by local school boards for salaries and school operation, was fixed in 1920—just 20 years before the present sharp upturn began either in industrial wages or in the cost of living. Thirteen years later, in response to widespread evidence that an educational breakdown was threatened by low salary standards, the Legislature of 1937 fixed $1320 as the minimum wage for elementary teachers.

Only last year that minimum was increased to $1500 "for the emergency". It will revert back to $1320 on June 30, next year. It is not surprising that young men and women who might make splendid educators remain unimpressed. They can make twice that salary in industry with but a fraction of the training required of a grammar school teacher.

Teacher-training enrollments have dropped off 63 per cent!

Many school districts, unable to greatly supplement the State allotment by local taxes, are strongly affected by teacher losses. It is to meet that crisis, the Council of Education announces, that it will present on the Fall election ballot Proposition 9, to increase the State's share of school costs from $60 to $80 per pupil. Parents of children in school and educators alike will watch that development with keen interest.

Kathleen Norris Says:

The Family Goes Crazy

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"They go out to attractive country restaurants, or even picnic together. In short, he is in love with this vain little thing."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

IT IS MY opinion that the entire world is going crazy," writes a reader from Seattle, Wash. "My husband and I have been happily married for fourteen years; ours has been a relationship of affection, mutual respect, easiness. Sometimes in the old days he laughed at my club interests, sometimes I grew impatient when he went a little too far with a poker game or stayed out too late and drank too much for his comfort or mine, but I always regarded my marriage as a settled thing, and felt myself one of the fortunate and beloved wives.

"Jim was a widower and my employer when we were married, he is now 49 and I am 36. We have a small daughter of nine, and Jim has two boys by his first wife, both now marines. One came home on furlough and was decorated, has now gone out again; the younger should be here this summer for a long rest; he has been seriously injured and may never be able to go back.

"Jim, the most devoted of fathers, seems to have gone crazy about young Jim's coming home. 'What will we do with him—active boy like that not able to walk any more—sitting around here watching the other fellows play tennis and dance—out of everything.' He keeps up this kind of muttering even in his sleep. He says repeatedly that he would rather hear that the boy was dead.

Husband Flirts with Girl.

"But that's not all. Recently he has been spending a good deal of time with a 17-year-old girl whose mother works in his office. He took her to the circus, said it was good to hear that kid laugh. She writes him little notes, and he makes her constant presents, and takes her and her mother to lunch somewhere almost every day, from the office. They go out to attractive country restaurants, or even picnic together. In short, he is in love with this rather vapid, vain little thing, and whatever I do or say about it seems ridiculous, clumsy and useless.

"Once when I mentioned the absurdity of the whole thing, he assured me that nothing would ever alter his affection for me or his sense of duty to Leslie, our little girl. Unfortunately she is a rather fat, awkward little girl, wears glasses, and is at the rude age. She can't help me out much in my effort to make home attractive to Jim and to counteract the effect of the pretty little Fritzi—to call her that.

"This and the thought of young Jim's return, invalidated, has made me terribly nervous, and I find it hard to sleep. With no cooperation from either husband or daughter I don't feel I can cope with the situation, to which is added my anxiety for my twin brothers, 28, both in the navy, and worry, of course, for the children of friends and relatives away in the service of the country. Please give me a guidpost to get through this."

My dear Millicent, I say in answer, we all need guidposts to take us through this fearful summer of 1944. But as for not being able to cope with your situation, of course you can cope with it, and thank God that you really are needed now by every member of your family.

"Adjust the whole house to his needs"

CENTER OF INTEREST

What is a woman going to do when her 49-year-old husband goes out constantly with a 17-year-old girl whose mother works in his office? He is in love with this "vapid little thing," she writes. He has two sons by a previous marriage, both marines. One, Jim, is coming home—crippled. The father seems to be completely upset by his son's plight. This may partially explain why he has turned to a young girl for consolation of a sort.

Miss Norris counsels this woman to ignore her husband's infatuation. It is a passing thing, she intimates.

The returned marine should be the center of interest, Miss Norris says. He is someone upon whom to lavish attention and affection. By spending her time making him comfortable, by playing games with him, by trying to make him happy, this woman will lighten her own burden, and achieve a measure of happiness for herself.

Jim senior's infatuation for the flattering little office friend is not a serious problem to you, whatever it may be to a girl of 17, who is fool enough to waste her time on a man almost 50. She must be unattractive to younger men, for your town is swarming with uniforms, and Fritzie could have her pick if she had even ordinary charm.

Girl Can Overcome Rudeness.

As to Leslie, there need not be a "rude age" and there should not be. A lasting and effectual cure, is to prepare her for everything you say, for a few days or weeks. "Leslie, Dad is going to ask you what sort of a time you had at the field sports today, and he wants a polite answer." "Leslie, when I ask you in a few minutes to go up and make your bed, I want you to say gently, 'Immediately, Mother,' or 'May I finish this program, Mother?'" "Whatever you're going to say when Mrs. Baker talks about the party, Leslie, say it gently and politely." Warn her in this way before you so much as say, "Good morning" or ask her to pass the toast, and you will be amazed how fast she breaks herself of the habit of rudeness. A very common habit, by the way, between eight and ten.

As for Jim junior, he will be your salvation. Don't pity or question him, but adjust the whole house to his needs; radio, big chair, telephone handy, a few friends in now and then, good meals, puzzles, new books, and any game he likes to play with you. If he doesn't play gin or dominoes, backgammon or cribbage, teach him.

It is a real privilege to have one of our boys home again to spoil; God knows we American women had little to do with the making of war; we would give our own lives to save these ruined younger lives if we could. But since we cannot, our share must be to make their handicapped time normal and happy. And for your consolation let me say that I have known many of these injured men to be spurred into the achievement of conspicuous success in spite of, or perhaps because of, the supposed physical handicap.

Mix-Match Furniture

"Mix-match" furniture is a novel line which is reported as being put out by at least one large furniture manufacturer, says the Painter and Decorator. In this type of furniture, the chairs may be of one color, the buffet of another, and the table of still another finish. Brown, black, white, Pompeian red, green, yellow and turquoise blue are used. The finish is lacquer, and several coats are applied to produce a piano-like finish. Colors are selected by an experienced decorator.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"TOWARDS ZERO" by Agatha Christie.

Long a favorite of mystery fans, this author has written another of those much involved murder yarns for your midnight reading. "Towards Zero" is a story centered around a wealthy, handsome social male god and his two wives. There is hate, jealousy, suspicion and a sprinkling of common sense. Not a large amount of the latter however. A short distance from London, at Gull's Point, is where the scene of the murder is laid, and it is there that all of the suspects are rounded up for questioning and the mystery unravelled. For once, Miss Christie has held a restraining hand on gruesomeness, but do not entertain the thought that she has withheld anything relative to suspense and cunning. If you are a mystery fan, you can't afford to miss this one.

"INTRIGUE FOR EMPIRE" by Kathleen Moore Knight.

Here is a new slant on enemy double-dealing. This is the story of what might have happened had not the FBI and Mexican authorities foiled an Axis plot to set up an empire in the Americas. When Pat Torreon was released from a North African concentration camp when General Eisenhower swept thru, he was on the spot when Brad Maury, newspaper correspondent, was killed. From that moment on things rolled fast and hot for him. Convinced that he was on the trail of "the greatest story since Pearl Harbor," Pat probed the secrets of two continents and an island. When FBI and Mexican authorities followed his lead, a sensational mine of Axis underground activities was uncovered. This author is well acquainted with every background and every situation she uses. She carefully selects and verifies all material; the result, a story brim full of intrigue and intense excitement.

"THE BLACK PATH OF FEAR" by Cornell Woolrich.

This is a Crime Club Selection and it has not been serialized in any form prior to book publication. The body had simply slipped to the floor, and now Scotty was charged with a murder he didn't commit. Fear dogged his every step. With never a moment's rest, the build-up, the atmosphere of terror, and the frantic effort to escape bind the reader closer and closer to tortured Scotty. A stealth of night cloaks this unusual story of fear. (Read this one before dark).

The proudest title in the Army

IT CONSISTS of two simple words.

Yet every soldier who's worth his salt covets it.

This title is simply:

"Good Soldier."

It isn't just happenstance that so many women in the WAC have earned this title—the proudest in the Army.

For wherever Wacs are working, both here and overseas, there you find a job well done. And done with a spirit so gallant and fine that high Army officers everywhere say of the WAC...

"They're soldiers. Good soldiers!"

"Good Soldier"

Good soldiers...

So, right now, the wise thing to do is to look over your heating equipment. Does it need a major overhauling or extensive repair? Is it worn-out and needs replacement? Conserve fuel this winter by having this work done now... this summer. Conserve your cash by taking advantage of the Special Terms now in effect. For either major repairs or replacement with new heating equipment, you have the work done now but... monthly payments need not begin until November 1st.
